

Economist Sees Possible Boom-Bust Cycle In Stock Mart

WASHINGTON (AP) — John K. Galbraith, Harvard economist said today the United States may be in the early stages of a boom-and-bust cycle that could end in a 1929-style crash.

Galbraith told the Senate Banking Committee there are "formidable safeguards" against another such crash. But he spoke in his prepared testimony of "resemblances" between conditions in the late 1920s and today that he said "are certainly interesting and possibly disturbing."

He urged that the government and Wall Street be ready to halt credit buying of stocks and to put on other emergency brakes if the 1½-year-old bull market shows no sign of slackening soon.

The committee called Galbraith and Harold E. Wood of St. Paul, Minn., president of the National Assn. of Securities Dealers in its "friendly study" of the stock market in the light of the price rise.

Galbraith voiced agreement with stock exchange presidents who testified earlier that the American economy is far stronger than in 1929. He agreed too there are safeguards against a new crash, among them curbs on "wholesale market rigging and fervent salesmanship."

But he cautioned that "the fundamental problem of containing a speculative orgy, once it is well launched, remains essentially unsolved."

Galbraith, who has written a book on the 1929 financial debacle, saw such danger signs now as increased credit buying, an influx of newcomers into the market and a growing gap between the sale price and the book value of shares.

Galbraith offered these specific recommendations:

1. "Should there be a resumption of the upward movement of the past year in the weeks or months ahead, the federal reserve should be pressed to put trading on a cash basis by raising margin requirements to 100 per cent." The margin (cash down payment) requirement now is 60 per cent.

2. The government should make clear its determination to hold securities speculation in check, with "specific and reiterated warning about the danger of runaway speculation."

3. "If speculative tendencies persist, more drastic measures involving the tax power should be contemplated."
4. The New York Stock Exchange should accompany its "public education" campaign, designed to increase the number of investors, with "stern warnings on the dangers that await the amateur investor, reminders of past misfortunes, and of the tendency of markets that have gone up spectacularly to come down the same way."

RED CHINA NOT BLUFFING; NEW ISLAND MOVE SEEN

Leaders Here Lag In Battle On Phone Rate

Fears Increasing That Ammer May Lack Support

Fears were mounting here today that a Public Utilities Commission hearing of vital importance to Pickaway County, set for Thursday morning in Columbus, will catch local officials and civic leaders unprepared.

At 10 a. m. Thursday in the State Office Building, Columbus, the PUCO will call upon all of the state's independent telephone companies to show cause why a disputed tariff provision should not be ruled illegal. Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer is preparing to attend the hearing, but reports Tuesday indicated he may have to represent this district without a supporting delegation.

Mayor Bob Hedges has urged that representative members of the community accompany Ammer, and said he understood others were trying to organize at least a small group for that purpose. But with the hearing less than 48 hours away, there was still no sign that others from here will go along with the prosecutor.

The hearing will be an outgrowth of a storm of criticism touched off by Ammer, who focused public attention on the apparent illegality of the tariff provision in question.

UNDER THE disputed provision, an increase in long distance rates for the Ohio Bell Telephone Company automatically became a similar increase for all of the state's independent phone firms. Ammer opened fire when he learned the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Company had raised its long distance rates in Pickaway County without advance notification to the customers. And without any opportunity for a hearing.

While arrangements for the highly important PUCO hearing have been surprisingly quiet through recent weeks, notifications were sent to the affected phone concerns and individuals directly involved. Ammer recently revealed the hearing was postponed from Feb. 28 to next Thursday at the request of the independent companies.

Ohio has more than 100 independent phone firms. All of them will be affected by the PUCO decision.

'Big Inch' Gasline Ripped By Blast

ZANESVILLE (AP) — Construction crews worked today to replace a 165-foot segment of "Big Inch" natural gas pipeline ruptured in an explosion and fire outside nearby Roseville.

No injuries were reported in the fire. Flames shooting up to 400 feet in the air attracted hundreds of motorists to the scene.

A spokesman for Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., owners of the line, said the fire was halted by closing valves on either side of the break. The firm gave no reason for the blast.

New Far East Military Boss Noted For 'Brains And Guts'

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, the 8th Army boss in Korea whose promotion to commander of U. S. forces in the Far East was announced today, never picked up any fancy nicknames, but if he had it probably would have been "Brains and Guts."

Taylor speaks more than half a dozen languages, is a student of philosophy and likes to spend his leisure hours reading Greek.

As for his courage, President Eisenhower in "Crusade in Europe" wrote of Taylor: "The risks he ran were greater than I asked any other agent or emissary to undertake during the war."

The President was referring to the time he sent Taylor behind the enemy lines in Italy to sound out Marshal Badoglio on a quick surrender.

Later, when Taylor's 101st Airborne Division was cut off and surrounded at Bastogne, Taylor was in Washington.

He rushed back to Europe and parachuted smack into the center of his division, knowing full well that either death or capture would be his fate if the Germans won the battle.

Taylor's daring return to the fighting added just that much more spirit to his paratroopers.

At Bastogne, Taylor lived a soldier's dream, a swashbuckling paratrooper hurrying 3,000 miles to get into a fight and then winning it the hard way.

But a little more than a year before that, Sept. 7, 1943, it took imagination along with daring to perform the task Eisenhower set for him.

The picture was this: Allied armies were preparing for the invasion of Italy. The Italian government, fed up with the way the German Nazis were treating them, wanted to surrender. Representatives of the Badoglio government, successor to Mussolini, had made promises of guides, interpreters, food, ammunition and vehicles if the Allies tried an airborne landing near Rome.

It had been decided to drop Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's 82nd Airborne Division on the airfields near Rome, seize the Italian capital and chase out the Germans.

The only thing lacking was definite assurance from Badoglio. Consequently Eisenhower picked Taylor, then executive officer of the 82nd Airborne, to go behind the Italian lines and talk to Badoglio.

Twenty-four hours ahead of the planned invasion, Taylor, then 41, in company with the late Col. Tudor Gardiner, former governor of Maine, went to the island of Ustica aboard a British PT boat. There they were taken aboard an Italian corvette which landed them at Gaeta.

In broad daylight, Taylor and Gardiner were whisked all the way to the Italian capital, where they met Badoglio.

Badoglio said he feared an airborne landing in that area would mean the massacre of every paratrooper.

Taylor radioed a coded message back to Eisenhower, "Call off the landings."

Taylor and Gardiner by their action probably saved thousands of American lives.

Dulles Slated To Give Data On His Findings

Radio-TV Statement Due Tonight; U. S. Intentions Untold

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles was described today as believing the Chinese Communists are not bluffing and will shortly make some military move against Nationalist-held islands opposite Formosa.

The secretary, who returned Sunday from a trip to the Far East, had plenty of opportunity today to outline such a view, either at secret briefings to congressional committees or in a report tonight to the nation.

He is making a day of it: The Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the morning, the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the afternoon and national radio-television networks tonight.

The recorded half-hour talk will be carried over radio by CBS at 10 p. m., ABC at 10:30 p. m. and MBS at 11:30 p. m. A film will be televised over Columbia at 11:15 p. m.

Officials said Dulles appeared convinced the Chinese Communists would make some move toward carrying out their threats to attack Formosa.

HE WAS REPRESENTED as feeling that military action against coastal islands probably would be coupled with subversion efforts directed at Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa refuge and its outposts.

He was said to be unwilling, even in private conversations, to spell out American intentions on defense of the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu, just off the Red mainland opposite Formosa.

Dulles and President Eisenhower have said Quemoy and Matsu will (Continued on Page Two)

Jurors Selected For Jelke Hearing

NEW YORK (AP) — The task of picking jurors continues today in the new trial to determine whether playboy Minot F. (Mickey) Jelke induced girls into a life of cafe society vice.

Three married men were seated on the jury on the trial's opening day yesterday. Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Liebler predicted selection of the full panel would take two to three days.

Jelke, 25, heir to an oleomargarine fortune, was convicted on two counts of compulsory prostitution two years ago but won a new trial because the judge had closed the courtroom to the public.

AEC Keeping Tab On Atomic Clouds

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Windblown remnants of the year's biggest atomic explosion drifted lazily across the nation today.

One portion of cloud broke away from the soaring mushroom of the yesterday's test A-blast and is moving east under the constant study of Atomic Energy Commission monitors.

Another part moved west and over the Pacific.

AEC officials emphasized that neither cloud was dangerous.

Major Dunton Directs Tribute To Armed Units

Major James A. Dunton of Circleville is again in charge of nationwide planning for the observance of Armed Forces Day, May 21.

A recent proclamation by President Eisenhower touched off preliminary work on the 1955 observance, a tribute to all of Uncle Sam's military and naval branches.

In his proclamation, the President called upon the public to join in the annual tribute to the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines, Coast Guard, National Guard, and the various reserve organizations. He emphasized that they constitute "our national power for peace."

This will be the sixth annual Armed Forces Day program, involving America's land, sea and air units, not only in the United States but also at hundreds of overseas bases. This year's program will be the third for which Major Dunton has handled the large-scale planning.

Major Dunton is chief of the special events branch of the Department of Defense office of public information.

Mamie Suffers Flu; Ike Doctors Cold

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower canceled his morning engagements today because of "slight symptoms of a cold" and his wife already was confined to bed with the flu.

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, told newsmen the President had remained in his living quarters and canceled his regular weekly meeting with Republican congressional leaders.

Hagerty said the White House physician, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, was with the President in his living quarters.

The press secretary said the President was remaining away from the office as a "protective measure since he has slight symptoms of a cold."

Hawaiians Seek To Return Home

PAHOA, Hawaii (AP)—Six hundred refugees badgered officials today for permission to return to their homes in the devastated Puna Peninsula as week-long volcanic eruptions simmered down to a mild bubbling action.

Earth tremors moderated. Lava fountains which had shot to a breathtaking 1,000 feet were just bubbling, with an occasional half-heated 50-foot spout.

Volcanologist Gordon A. MacDonald urged the refugees to wait. He warned that new eruptions "are still possible. I don't know when it will be safe."

Have You Been Reading Details On Chest Plan?

After a long and carefully managed program of the necessary preliminary work, the plan to set up a Community Chest in Pickaway County is now being explained in detail to the local public for final decision.

Leaders of the effort have made it clear that the public will be expected to give its decision by the time a "showdown" meeting comes due later this month in Circleville. Meanwhile, residents of the district are being encouraged to "speak up" on the subject so its support can be more closely measured.

Backers of the plan to merge most or all of the local fundraising activities have emphasized that the current opportunity to set up a Community Chest may be the last of its kind here for many years. Hence the importance of immediate and clear-cut public opinion on the proposal.

To help bring out sentiment prior to the final "showdown" gathering, speakers on the Chest organization have been lined up for any civic clubs and other groups which desire to have them appear. Speakers can be obtained by contacting either Ed Grigg or Frank Barnhill.

Also as a means of bringing the public's views into focus — and at the earliest possible date — highlights of a constitution proposed for the Community Chest setup are being published by The Herald. Today's installment appears on page nine.

New Air Attack Signal Plan Set

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—A new warning signal system of enemy air attack, which drops the general all-clear signal because of radioactive fallout danger, has been worked out by Civil Defense.

The United States and Canada have adopted the system together. New, simplified signals are to be sounded on sirens, horns and other warning devices. There are two signals. One is the "alert" and the other the "take cover."

The "all-clear" in effect since 1951, has been eliminated.

Panel Urges Change In Speed Limits

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Senate Highway Committee took a long step toward liberalizing Ohio's speed limits.

In recommending passage of a bill to increase the speed limits on state highways in non-congested city districts from 35 to 50 m.p.h., the committee added a provision increasing the limit outside cities from 50 to 60 m.p.h. The truck and school bus speed limit would remain at 50.

Army Major Cleared By Court-Martial

FT. SILL, Okla. (AP)—Maj. Ambrose H. Nugent was free today to return to the field artillery. A court-martial acquitted him of aiding the enemy while a prisoner of war for 38 months in Korea.

His seven-week trial was the longest in U. S. military history.

The court deliberated just over two hours yesterday before acquitting the Army career officer on nine specifications. Seven of the nine colonels on the court were Korean veterans.

Nugent, 45, was the first of five former Korea POWs tried on collaboration charges to be found innocent.

The graying, bespectacled officer was accused of collaborating by making propaganda speeches, forming peace committees, signing and circulating documents detrimental to his country, offering aid to the enemy and foiling escape plans. He based his defense on the fact he was subjected to duress, followed orders of his superior and that he acted always for the welfare of his men.

The charges were based on the period between June 5, 1950, when he was captured at the start of the Korean hostilities, through the next summer when he was moved as a peace delegate to Camp No. 12. It was there that the Army had accused him of making propaganda speeches and signing surrender leaflets.

Young College Student Slain In Columbus Robbery

COLUMBUS (AP)—A young service station attendant, working his way through college, was killed early today in a robbery.

Opened school books were on a nearby desk in a back room where the body was found. Police said the victim, Don Keyes, 24, of Columbus, was the lone night attendant at the oil station.

He had been shot through the left temple. Police said a shotgun apparently was the weapon because of the gaping wound.

Station manager Peter Lombardi said Keyes, the father of two children, worked nights and attended Ohio State University daytime.

Lombardi said a cash drawer was broken into and emptied in the room where the body was found. The amount taken was not immediately determined.

Ohio Assembly Seen Making Up Long-Due Payment

COLUMBUS (AP)—More than 20 years ago David C. Warner, the man who was attempting to devise a water conservation program for Ohio, had the rug pulled out from under him.

After two years' work, the whole appropriation for Warner's salary and his work was vetoed.

For six years, Warner worked doggedly ahead without salary.

In 1939, Warner went back on the state payroll. He established himself as an authority in his field and became known as the "father of Ohio water conservation."

Today Warner is past 80, ill and in financial distress.

But his money troubles may be nearing an end.

Last night the Ohio Senate passed, 29-1, and sent to the House an emergency bill to appropriate $5,000 "for the partial compensation for past services to the State of Ohio by David C. Warner."

Warmup Seen In Most Of Central Area

CHICAGO (AP)—Skies were clear and there was some warming in most of the country today with the cold centered in the nation's north-east quarter.

There was marked warming in the northern and central plains since yesterday as the cold air pushed into the Northeast. It was 26 above in Fargo, N. D., compared to 12 below yesterday.

In the Northeast, readings were around zero near the Canadian border and in the teens or lower over most other sections. It was a little chilly in other parts of the East with temperatures in the 20s and 30s extending deep into the Southeast. But cloudy skies in the extreme Southeast kept temperatures in the 40s in southern Georgia, ranging upward to the 60s in southern Florida.

Readings were in the 30s in the plains states, except for 50s in southern Texas.

Light snow or flurries fell from the upper Mississippi Valley across the southern Great Lakes region through Ohio and into parts of the northern Appalachians. Light rain fell along the Gulf coast.

A blizzard swept in off Lake Ontario yesterday and dumped up to 16 inches of snow in the New York state area at the eastern end of the lake. Travel was curtailed. To the north, along the Canadian border, strong winds drifted snow and blocked many secondary roads.

Turkish Spokesman Tells Friendship

CINCINNATI (AP)—Casim Gulek, secretary general of the opposition Republican party in Turkey, today described his country as a "reliable, dependable friend."

Addressing a meeting at the University of Cincinnati, sponsored by the Taft Memorial Fund, he said:

"Turkey is filling the gap in the defense of the free world. It is combined with the states of the East in that Turkey has great military strength—one division for every million of population. There are 23 million people in the country. It is the strongest military force this side of the Iron Curtain."

Dulles Slated To Give Data On His Findings

Radio-TV Statement Due Tonight; U. S. Intentions Untold

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles was described today as believing the Chinese Communists are not bluffing and will shortly make some military move against Nationalist-held islands opposite Formosa.

The secretary, who returned Sunday from a trip to the Far East, had plenty of opportunity today to outline such a view, either at secret briefings to congressional committees or in a report tonight to the nation.

He is making a day of it: The Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the morning, the House Foreign Affairs Committee in the afternoon and national radio-television networks tonight.

The recorded half-hour talk will be carried over radio by CBS at 10 p. m., ABC at 10:30 p. m. and MBS at 11:30 p. m. A film will be televised over Columbia at 11:15 p. m.

Officials said Dulles appeared convinced the Chinese Communists would make some move toward carrying out their threats to attack Formosa.

HE WAS REPRESENTED as feeling that military action against coastal islands probably would be coupled with subversion efforts directed at Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa refuge and its outposts.

He was said to be unwilling, even in private conversations, to spell out American intentions on defense of the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu, just off the Red mainland opposite Formosa.

Dulles and President Eisenhower have said Quemoy and Matsu will

Jurors Selected For Jelke Hearing

NEW YORK (AP)—The task of picking jurors continues today in the new trial to determine whether playboy Minot F. (Mickey) Jelke induced girls into a life of cafe society vice.

Three married men were seated on the jury on the trial's opening day yesterday. Asst. Dist. Atty. Anthony J. Lieber predicted selection of the full panel would take two to three days.

Jelke, 25, heir to an oleomargarine fortune, was convicted on two counts of compulsory prostitution two years ago but won a new trial because the judge had closed the courtroom to the public.

AEC officials emphasized that neither cloud was dangerous.

2,600 Families Forced To Leave Homes Along Route Of Big Stream

CINCINNATI (AP)—The hump of the flooding Ohio River moved slowly downstream today, forcing hundreds of families and businesses from the shore areas.

It left a wake of heavy property damage as it spilled out along its natural border line separating Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana.

An estimated 2,600 families were affected. In Ohio alone, some 900 families fled shore area homes. The Weather Bureau in Cincinnati called it a "major flood" because more than two thirds of the 981-mile river was at least five feet over flood stage. The American Red Cross classed it as a "disaster."

Col. J. L. Person, the Ohio River engineer, said damage would probably run to several million dollars.

"THERE HAS been a good deal of scattered damage," he said. "But there has been nothing like a catastrophe. The low-lying areas which get wet every few years are under water now."

As the swollen waters spin down the Ohio, more and more families will be forced to flee.

The Red Cross said 1,000 families in West Virginia, from 500 to 600 in Kentucky and 200 in Indiana had been affected.

The river crested early today in Gallipolis about 7 feet above the flood stage of 50 feet. Downstream at Cincinnati the water will crest at 61 feet Thursday morning, 9 feet above flood stage.

This will be the highest mark in seven years. The Ohio reached 64.8 feet on April 18, 1948, here.

Sections of Main Street in Pomerooy, the county seat of Meigs County, were under 5 feet of water. Thirty-six homes were evacuated and 46 businesses were knocked out. Schools were closed.

In Catlettsburg, Ky., between Huntington and Ashland, 1,800 persons or one third of the total population, had to leave their homes. Another 80 families were evacuated in Henderson, W. Va., yesterday and 35 in Kingston, W. Va.

Abandonment Means Jail To Mother Of 3

A mother of three children, two by a previous marriage, was sentenced to six months in Pickaway County jail today on an accusation of abandoning her children.

The woman's actual sentence was reduced to three months by Probate Judge Guy Cline. She is accused of abandonment of two children, ages 10 and seven, last Sunday.

Her present husband reportedly will only support their two-year old child. She entered a legal suit against him last week for non-support of the other two children.

She was divorced from her first husband in 1949. The court gave her custody of the two children.

ON COMPLAINT of neighbors through city police, county authorities entered her apartment. They found no electricity (turned off, they found, because of non-payment of bills) and three candles were used for light.

She apparently left the apartment Sunday afternoon while the two older children were at the movies. A note was found saying that she was leaving and "God take" of the children.

She was later found in Columbus.

Her husband had taken the youngest child to Amanda for the day. He was sentenced to three months in jail but the sentence was suspended on condition he contri-be defended if attacked by Red China in an obvious drive to conquer Formosa.

Dulles reportedly says he made no commitments when he and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden discussed the Formosa situation in the Far East.

But in London today, Eden called on Chiang Kai-shek to withdraw his Nationalist armed forces from the coastal islands off China.

Giving the House of Commons a report on his Bangkok meeting with Dulles and his tour of Southeast Asia, Eden praised both the United States and Chinese Communists for relaxing tension over Formosa.

However, he said sounding out Peiping on a cease-fire had led him to "come reluctantly to the conclusion that the necessary conditions for progress do not yet exist."

"The U. S. government have already given positive proofs of their desire to relax tension and reduce the risks of war," Eden said. "I am convinced that they wish to see conditions created which would put an end to active military hostilities in the area and reduce the dangers of a wider conflict."

"They have effectively restrained the Chinese Nationalists in recent weeks from initiating attacks against the Chinese mainland. They have persuaded the Nationalists to evacuate the Tachen and Nanchi Islands."

Second Occupant Of Car Dies As Result Of Route 23 Crash

Pickaway County's sixth traffic fatality of 1955 was recorded Monday night when a Chillicothe man died in a Columbus hospital from injuries he received in an accident in Pickaway County.

James E. Brown, 56, succumbed to his injuries at 5:30 p. m. in Mercy Hospital. He and Ruth Spraggins, 32, also of Chillicothe, were occupants of a car which was struck head-on by another machine.

She died almost instantly early Sunday morning following the crash.

Three others, all occupants of the second car, were injured. The driver, Donald Mears, a 26-year old Ohio State University student, is still fighting for his life. The other two are also OSU students.

Bell Tower Honoring Taft Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Preliminary plans for a bell tower memorializing the late Sen. Robert A. Taft should be ready within a month, Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) says.

The architect, he said, is Douglas William Orr of New Haven, Conn., a close friend of the Ohio Republican. Orr also was the architect who drew the plans for remodeling the White House in 1951.

Brown said that once a design is approved the Robert A. Taft Memorial Foundation will propose a law authorizing the tower's construction near the Capitol.

U.S. Governors Polled On New Highway Setup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) polled the nation's governors today in an effort to find out whether the states are ready, willing and able to put up more money for highway improvement.

Gore is chairman of a Senate Public Works subcommittee now considering President Eisenhower's plan for a huge new 10-year federal-state highway modernization program and Gore's rival proposal for an increase in the present federal aid highway program. Both proposals would entail bigger state outlays.

In separate telegrams to the 48 state chief executives, Gore said the subcommittee had instructed him to ask for the governors' views on "the ability and present inclination of their respective states to raise the additional funds to match and implement proposals now before it."

Gore explained that he proposes to nearly double the present $875 million annual federal highway allocation. The states would continue to match most of the federal funds on a 50-50 basis.

He said the Eisenhower administration's highway program, while recommending "greatly increased" federal spending on interstate roads, provides "no increase in federal funds for primary, farm-to-market, or urban projects."

Akron Truck Firm Cited For Safety

COLUMBUS (AP)—An Akron firm, Morrison Motor Freight, Inc., was cited today to receive the Ohio Trucking Assn.'s top annual safety award.

The award is scheduled during a luncheon in the second day of the group's three-day meeting here.

The Morrison firm hauls general commodities more than five million miles yearly.

Other safe driving awards by categories include:

Over five million miles: Bolin Drive-A-Way Co., Cleveland; one-to-five million miles: Ford Brothers, Inc., Ironton; under one million miles: Lorain Trucking Co., Lorain.

Delegates at the general membership meeting this afternoon are scheduled to hear a group of Battelle Institute staff members report on a recent Battelle study of Ohio's trucking industry.

Delegates yesterday heard E. S. Hoke, Cleveland manager of the White Motor Co., say that several truck manufacturers now have nuclear physicists experimenting with atomic energy motors.

"Atomic motors are something that definitely is in the future for the trucking industry," he said.

Hoke also said that parts of trucks such as fenders would soon be made of plastic and other synthetic materials.

However, he said sounding out Peiping on a cease-fire had led him to "come reluctantly to the conclusion that the necessary conditions for progress do not yet exist."

"The U. S. government have already given positive proofs of their desire to relax tension and reduce the risks of war," Eden said. "I am convinced that they wish to see conditions created which would put an end to active military hostilities in the area and reduce the dangers of a wider conflict."

Second Occupant Of Car Dies As Result Of Route 23 Crash

Pickaway County's sixth traffic fatality of 1955 was recorded Monday night when a Chillicothe man died in a Columbus hospital from injuries he received in an accident in Pickaway County.

James E. Brown, 56, succumbed to his injuries at 5:30 p. m. in Mercy Hospital. He and Ruth Spraggins, 32, also of Chillicothe, were occupants of a car which was struck head-on by another machine.

She died almost instantly early Sunday morning following the crash.

Three others, all occupants of the second car, were injured. The driver, Donald Mears, a 26-year old Ohio State University student, is still fighting for his life. The other two are also OSU students.

OFFICIALS at University Hospital list Mears' condition as "still critical". They added that "he spent a poor night".

The accident occurred on Route 23, on the first S-curve south of the intersection of Route 762. Authorities could not determine definitely whether Miss Spraggins or Brown was the driver of the northbound car.

Mears received skull and leg fractures and a broken jaw. A report here stated that he underwent brain surgery at the hospital.

Miss Spraggins' death was the fifth recorded in Pickaway County this year; Brown's the sixth. In 1954, the county's fifth traffic fatality was not recorded until May 19. The sixth was registered on June 6, part of a double-fatality.

Last year, the months of March and April were fatality free, as far as traffic accidents were concerned. At the present rate, and with Mears' life held by a slim thread, the county may double its record of last year when 14 persons met their death in traffic mishaps.

The first traffic death in 1955 occurred on Jan. 21, approximately two months after the last fatality of 1954 on Nov. 19.

Bell Tower Honoring Taft Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Preliminary plans for a bell tower memorializing the late Sen. Robert A. Taft should be ready within a month, Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) says.

The architect, he said, is Douglas William Orr of New Haven, Conn., a close friend of the Ohio Republican. Orr also was the architect who drew the plans for remodeling the White House in 1951.

Brown said that once a design is approved the Robert A. Taft Memorial Foundation will propose a law authorizing the tower's construction near the Capitol.

Execution Stay Granted Slayer

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The 2nd District Court of Appeals has granted a stay of execution to Alphonso Cosby, 46, of Springfield. He was slated to die March 17 in Ohio Penitentiary electric chair.

U.S. Governors Polled On New Highway Setup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) polled the nation's governors today in an effort to find out whether the states are ready, willing and able to put up more money for highway improvement.

Gore is chairman of a Senate Public Works subcommittee now considering President Eisenhower's plan for a huge new 10-year federal-state highway modernization program and Gore's rival proposal for an increase in the present federal aid highway program. Both proposals would entail bigger state outlays.

In separate telegrams to the 48 state chief executives, Gore said the subcommittee had instructed him to ask for the governors' views on "the ability and present inclination of their respective states to raise the additional funds to match and implement proposals now before it."

Gore explained that he proposes to nearly double the present $875 million annual federal highway allocation. The states would continue to match most of the federal funds on a 50-50 basis.

He said the Eisenhower administration's highway program, while recommending "greatly increased" federal spending on interstate roads, provides "no increase in federal funds for primary, farm-to-market, or urban projects."

Akron Truck Firm Cited For Safety

COLUMBUS (AP)—An Akron firm, Morrison Motor Freight, Inc., is slated today to receive the Ohio Trucking Assn.'s top annual safety award.

The award is scheduled during a luncheon in the second day of the group's three-day meeting here. The Morrison firm hauls general commodities more than five million miles yearly.

Other safe driving awards by categories include:
Over five million miles: Bolin Drive-A-Way Co., Cleveland; one-to-five million miles: Ford Brothers, Inc., Ironton; under one million miles: Lorain Trucking Co., Lorain.

Delegates at the general membership meeting this afternoon are scheduled to hear a group of Battelle Institute staff members report on a recent Battelle study of Ohio's trucking industry.

Delegates yesterday heard E. S. Hoke, Cleveland manager of the White Motor Co., say that several truck manufacturers now have nuclear physicists experimenting with atomic energy motors.

"Atomic motors are something that definitely is in the future for the trucking industry," he said. Hoke also said that parts of trucks such as fenders would soon be made of plastic and other synthetic materials.

'Peter Pan' Tops Interest In Tax

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP)—The annual town meeting approved an $800,000 budget last night—but only after some 100 town meeting members were summoned from their television sets to vote.

Town officials reported that competition offered by a highly publicized TV show (the "Peter Pan" musical) delayed the town meeting about an hour while they telephoned members in order to secure a quorum.

Only 335 of the necessary 425 members were on hand at the 7:30 p.m. starting time to vote on the budget which Town Counsel William F. Hayes said may mean a $4 to $5 boost in the tax rate.

Blaze Damages Palsy Center

REISTERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—The Children's Rehabilitation Institute, a large private cerebral palsy treatment center, has closed its doors temporarily after a basement fire which routed the entire staff and 70 young crippled patients.

The patients, ranging in age from 3 to 25 and none of them able to walk, were carried to safety yesterday by about 50 quick-acting employees.

Firemen confined the blaze to the laundry and maintenance room. There was some damage to the dormitory on the floor above.

Handicapped Pair Given OK To Keep Baby

AKRON (AP)—A deaf and blind couple Monday won their fight to keep their 2-week-old baby, as a juvenile court judge ruled the county welfare department can't make them put it in a foster home.

Judge Russell Thomas said Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hathaway can keep their son "with no strings attached."

The ruling came after a two-hour informal hearing sought by the welfare department. Welfare Director Leo Mulhearn said he wanted the hearing to find out if the baby should not be placed with foster parents who could see.

Hathaway, 53, and his wife, Georgia, 32, were supported by friends and neighbors from near-by Stow where they live. They had claimed that despite their handicaps they were able to care for the child.

Mrs. Hathaway said the healthy, normal child "is the only thing I ever had of my own in my whole life."

Hathaway was informed of the judge's decision by a friend who wrote the words on his hand. He asked to be led to the judge. He

Letter On License Tag Inverted For Fairfield County

COLUMBUS (AP)—That "W" in Fairfield County license plates looks more like an inverted "M."

Turns out somebody at Ohio State Penitentiary, which produces the plates, made an error.

Robert T. Scott, in charge of license plate distribution for the bureau of motor vehicles, explained the mixup this way:

The letter "M" is similar to the "W" on the dyes from which the plates are made, except that the sides of the "M" are vertical and the sides of the "W" are angled outward.

The first batch of 1,000 plates made up for Fairfield County went out with a "W" stamped on them, but production was evidently stopped after that batch. When it was resumed again, somebody goofed and used an upside-down "M" dye in place of the "W."

Scott said the inverted "Ms" will be recognized as "Ws" and no attempt made to change them.

shook the judge's hand and thanked him. Then Hathaway embraced his wife.

"I'll need a diaper service," was her first comment.

Speeding Autoist Dies After Crash

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—With police pursuing, a young motorist drove for 42 miles down the wrong side of the busy Pennsylvania Turnpike yesterday at speeds up to 100 m.p.h.

The chase finally ended when the speeding car crashed into a tractor trailer set up as a roadblock. The driver, Kenneth Shelly, 27, of nearby Lititz, Pa., died in a hospital two hours later without giving any reason for his flight. Police said he hit the roadblock at 90 m.p.h., making no apparent effort to stop. The car hit the trailer so hard it pushed under it and continued on for at least 10 feet.

Navy's Request Irks Councilmen

BOSTON (AP)—A navy request for $150 to transport 100 seamen to march in the annual Evacuation Day-St. Patrick's Day parade March 17 in South Boston drew a broadside last night from the City Council.

"Anybody could almost hit a golf ball from the Fargo Building (naval headquarters) . . . to the starting point of the parade," said Councilman William J. Foley, a World War II Navy officer.

Parade officials said they are hopeful the Navy will withdraw its request.

AKRON (AP) — A deaf and blind couple Monday won their fight to keep their 2-week-old baby, as a juvenile court judge ruled the county welfare department can't make them put it in a foster home.

Judge Russell Thomas said Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hathaway can keep their son "with no strings attached."

The ruling came after a two-hour informal hearing sought by the welfare department. Welfare Director Leo Mulhearn said he wanted the hearing to find out if the baby should not be placed with foster parents who could see.

Hathaway, 53, and his wife, Georgia, 32, were supported by friends and neighbors from nearby Stow where they live. They had claimed that despite their handicaps they were able to care for the child.

Mrs. Hathaway said the healthy, normal child "is the only thing I ever had of my own in my whole life."

Hathaway was informed of the judge's decision by a friend who wrote the words on his hand. He asked to be led to the judge. He shook the judge's hand and thanked him. Then Hathaway embraced his wife.

"I'll need a diaper service," was her first comment.

Letter On License Tag Inverted For Fairfield County

COLUMBUS (AP) — That "W" in Fairfield County license plates looks more like an inverted "M."

Turns out somebody at Ohio State Penitentiary, which produces the plates, made an error.

Robert T. Scott, in charge of license plate distribution for the bureau of motor vehicles, explained the mixup this way:

The letter "M" is similar to the "W" on the dyes from which the plates are made, except that the sides of the "M" are vertical and the sides of the "W" are angled outward.

The first batch of 1,000 plates made up for Fairfield County went out with a "W" stamped on them, but production was evidently stopped after that batch. When it was resumed again, somebody goofed and used an upside-down "M" dye in place of the "W."

Scott said the inverted "Ms" will be recognized as "Ws" and no attempt made to change them.

Speeding Autoist Dies After Crash

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — With police pursuing, a young motorist drove for 42 miles down the wrong side of the busy Pennsylvania Turnpike yesterday at speeds up to 100 m.p.h.

The chase finally ended when the speeding car crashed into a tractor trailer set up as a roadblock. The driver, Kenneth Shelly, 27, of nearby Lititz, Pa., died in a hospital two hours later without giving any reason for his flight.

Police said he hit the roadblock at 90 m.p.h., making no apparent effort to stop. The car hit the trailer so hard it pushed under it and continued on for at least 10 feet.

Navy's Request Irks Councilmen

BOSTON (AP) — A navy request for $150 to transport 100 seamen to march in the annual Evacuation Day-St. Patrick's Day parade March 17 in South Boston drew a broadside last night from the City Council.

"Anybody could almost hit a golf ball from the Fargo Building (naval headquarters) . . . to the starting point of the parade," said Councilman William J. Foley, a World War II Navy officer.

Parade officials said they are hopeful the Navy will withdraw its request.

KEEP EYES ON MARKET

MEMBERS OF A Senate investigating committee, named to look into operations of the nation's stock markets, are a bit fearful they have the wrong pig by the ear. The purpose of the committee, presumably, is to discover why the market goes up one day and down the next. This has always been a puzzle to investors, who would all be rich if they could find the answer.

However, the committee wants it understood it is not too greatly concerned over recent activity in stocks. It will not engage in a witch hunt, but will conduct a friendly investigation, more for the purpose of reassuring the public than alarming it. The whole thing, of course, is prompted by the memory of 1929, when wild speculation brought a crash that ruined many millionaires overnight.

Normal speculative urge is beneficial to national economy. There is little danger of it getting out of hand, regardless of congressional interest. On the theory that a burnt child is fearful of fire, investors will not forget those other days, when bust followed boom, to the distress of all concerned.

BIGGEST BARGAIN

RECENT INCREASE in the price of a New York City Sunday newspaper to 25 cents—the first to sell at that figure in the East—went all but unnoticed by the public. Many Sunday newspapers now sell for 20 cents a copy, and more than a hundred daily editions now sell at from seven cents to 10 cents a copy.

These price increases have been made without a decline in circulation, except of a temporary nature in some instances which was quickly regained. People appreciate that newspapers today are the greatest bargain their coins will buy, and do not cavil if the price is raised to meet increasing cost of publishing a newspaper.

Total circulation of newspapers in the U. S. gained last year, continuing a pattern that has been unbroken since World War II. Undoubtedly newspapers in the future will cost more than they do today, unless there is a reversal in the upward trend of production costs. But in that day people will buy more newspapers than they do today, because they will be convinced a newspaper is worth more than the low price for which it sells.

Americans are too greatly concerned about the general welfare and too little about domestic tranquility.

Most folk don't know where the world is going and have concluded the only thing they can do is just hang on for the ride.

These Days

In 1928, Soviet Russia produced 4 million tons of steel; in 1953, it produced 38 million tons. Prior to 1917, Russia was essentially an agricultural country with a primitive industry consisting principally of small manufactures and handicrafts. The advance, therefore, to a modern industry, based on steel, has been enormous in a short period.

However, to achieve this result, agriculture was sacrificed. It was not so intended, the Russian assumption being that the modernized collective farms would produce increasingly, particularly as mechanized and scientific methods were being applied. It has not worked out that way. The farmer has measured his work against the availability of consumers goods.

Malenkov and Mikoyan believed that they could increase agricultural production by increasing the availability of consumers goods. Unfortunately for their program, Soviet Russia's commitments for armaments could not be postponed and therefore Krushchev had to make the changes in policy sharp and dramatic. What means he will use to stimulate agricultural production does not yet appear, but the neglect of consumer and light industry cannot but affect the peasant unfavorably. Raising his own food, his compensation must be measured in terms of clothing, improved housing and increased luxuries. Otherwise there is no reason for him to put himself out to increase his output.

Stalin never solved the agricultural problem: His various "Five-Year Plans" were for the benefit of heavy industry at the expense of the peasant and the worker, who nevertheless did not rebel for a complex of reasons. Expenditures for atomic experimentation undoubtedly have aggravated this situation. "Focus," a publication of the American Geographical Society, states:

"... according to a recent American study, real wages in the Soviet Union declined precipitately during the early Five-Year Plans and only now are once again approaching the level of 1928. The amount of housing in cities is reported to have decreased from 64 square feet of floor space per person in 1928 to 46 square feet in 1953. The average urban family of five has a one-room apartment 12 by 19 feet. . ."

There is no physical reason why Soviet Russia should not be an outstanding industrial and agricultural country. In Czarist times, serfdom, absentee landlordism and an autocratic system of government held the people down. Russia missed the Industrial Revolution of the 18th and 19th centuries altogether. Soviet Russia established a rigid Socialist economy which utilized wealth and resources according to a fixed program rather than by competition.

While remarkable progress was made in certain areas of production, as in steel, in others, as in agriculture, the system failed. The incentives for production which manifest themselves in private enterprise do not achieve the same results under Socialism.

For instance, scientists, writers, actors, dancers and party leaders, under the Soviet system, enjoy all the benefits of our society and sometimes more, but there are no small manufacturers who produce such surprising results as the establishment of a great industry, useful in war as well as (Continued on Page Seven)

FRED SLEPT, but Katie went on worrying. In the dairy, the next day, she overheard a woman say loudly, defiantly, "I don't care what anyone says, the doctor's a good man."

Katie thought so, too, but such things didn't have to be stated, unless—

Later Ludmilla said to her, "You're worrying about Fred. What has he done?"

"I don't know, Mamma, that he's done anything."

Ludmilla was sitting erectly in the side chair, one hand folded over the other in the lap of her gray calico dress. "Is Murphy in this?" she asked sternly.

"Oh, no, Mamma! Katie's cheeks were pink. 'I'm sure he isn't. This—this—oh, it's just talk and misunderstanding. I'm sure of that.'"

"Have you spoken to Fred about it?"

"I tried, last night. But he was so tired."

"You know, I think, that people always gossip about a doctor. It is one of his women patients?"

Katie shook her head. "Oh, no! I mean, I understand about that. But this—"

"Tell me, Katie, what you know. Maybe I can help you."

"Yes, Well, you see—"

So she told what she knew of the Nienabers, of the way Clarence Godfrey had brought them to his fruit ranch and then abandoned them. Of their isolation, their fear—Clara's illness, and the baby. "He says he had to take it from the mother, Mamma Beier."

"Where is the baby?"

"Linda Kyle is caring for it. She asked to, and Fred let her. He brought it here first—"

"When was this?"

"The night it was born. That was the night after the party I gave. You were asleep."

"Was Murphy also asleep?"

"Mamma, I tell you Murphy isn't in on this!"

"Who started stories?"

"I don't know."

"Katie, do not lie to me."

The girl stared at Ludmilla, then laughed. "You're just like Fred. I can't fool, either."

Ludmilla waited.

"I don't know that this is right, Mamma," said Katie hesitantly.

"But Mirandy owns the ranch next to Godfrey's. She—"

"So!" cried Ludmilla. "That one!"

"Now, Mamma. . . I only figure that she talked to the Nienabers, and her German is so poor that she—well—misunderstood."

"Why don't you go out and talk to the Nienabers?"

"Oh, I couldn't. I don't have a car. It's quite a way out there. Besides, Fred wouldn't want me to interfere."

"Maybe you are right," said Ludmilla, rising from her chair. "But I have a car. I talk German. I shall go out!"

"Oh, Mamma! Fred—"

"Fred need not know! I shall not harm anyone. I shall talk to this Nienaber. And maybe I shall talk to this Mirandy!"

Katie gurgled at the way she spoke Mirandy's name, and did what else she could to dissuade Ludmilla. It was far from enough. She finally gave the valiant old lady directions for reaching the Godfrey ranch and watched her little coupe trundle off up the street, Ludmilla looking like one of those rigid little figures put into toy cars of molded iron.

Ludmilla's first word with Richard Nienaber was reassuring. In German, she announced herself to the man as the doctor's mother.

"Kuss die hand!" cried the little man, hastening to open the gate.

That servile greeting expressed many things, but resentment was not among them. It took Ludmilla five minutes of rapid German to determine the situation here, five more for her to go into the basement rooms and look around. It took her no time at all to decide what must be done.

In the middle of the afternoon, when Fred turned his car into the lane, and came up to the house, blankets and sheets and towels were flapping from a clothesline. There was the rich smell of baking in the air, the perfume of a stewing chicken—and Ludmilla stood, skirts tilted, upon a step-ladder, washing the basement windows of the Godfrey house.

"And just what do you think you are doing?" called her son.

She did not look around, or pause in her task. "That is a very foolish question. What do you want?"

"Where is Nienaber?"

"I told him to clean the chicken house. He has been neglecting things."

"He's had great troubles, Mamma."

"Filth never lightened trouble, Fred." She studied the window pane suspiciously, then prepared to dismount from the ladder. Fred went to her help, his face and tone a mixture of anger and amusement. "You should not have done this, Mamma."

"Why not?"

"For one thing, you're too old to fall off ladders."

"Nu, geh!" She stopped for her bucket of water. Fred held her hand.

She looked sternly at her son. "I came out to help these poor people!"

"Yes, Mamma, but—"

"I am not so old but what I can wash bedclothes, scrub a floor and cook food for a man."

Nienaber had emerged from his chicken house and caught sight of Fred. Now he came running and stumbling across the yard.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — The prosecution of the Kansas City Star for alleged violation of the antitrust statutes shows vividly how a vindictive President can use his power to obtain political revenge. The behind-the-scenes story of Harry S. Truman's personal vendetta against this great Missouri newspaper is an incredible and sinister drama.

Two weeks before Truman quit the White House, he instituted the civil suit and criminal action against two Star officers. The FBI assigned scores of its ablest agents to the case, in contrast to its indifference to the Pendergast election frauds. More strangely, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., appointed by Truman's successor, carried on vigorously when he took office.

The first case was tried before a Truman-sponsored judge, Richard Duncan. A former House member, Duncan was nominated by F.D.R. at Truman's suggestion over the objection of former Attorney General Francis Biddle, who questioned his fitness. Judge Duncan's instructions to the jury have been characterized as "highly prejudicial" to the Star. Earl Jinkinson, who directed the prosecution against the newspaper for the Department of Jus-ice, has been promoted by Brownell. He has been made head of the antitrust division of the Midwest, with headquarters in Chicago.

ACTION—The Star was convicted by a jury of violating the anti-trust laws because of its low package price for its morning, evening and Sunday editions. The government apparently contends that efficiency and economy in production and distribution of a product—any product—constitutes a crime.

The same issue has been raised against the newspaper's combined low advertising rates. In a sense, the government asks a jury of lay people to pass upon such a complex problem as a newspaper's circulation, advertising and accounting structure. It amounts to an indirect method of price-fixing.

In addition to the criminal case, in which the Star has been found guilty, there is pending a civil suit. Since the Star will appeal, the Supreme Court may yet pass upon the government's attempt to coerce and influence the press. If it can be done to the Star, it can be applied to any newspaper.

POLITICAL BOSS — But the more important story here lies outside the courtroom. It is a fantastic tale of crooked Missouri politics, a newspaper's crusade to clean up Kansas City, and a former President's mistaken loyalty to a political grafter.

For 40 years, the political boss of Kansas City was "Old Tom" Pendergast, who ended his career in federal prison for cheating on his income tax. He ran a wide-open town—gambling, prostitution, speakeasies, poolrooms. He cowed business and industry with his control of City Hall, sometimes the governor and legislature.

He stuffed ballot boxes and voted the dead. He was an influential figure at Democratic national conventions. The makers of Presidents sought his favors.

YOUNG DAYS—Truman would still be an unknown except for "Old Tom." After the bankruptcy of his haberdashery shop, Truman was handed a $6,000 county job by Pendergast because his nephew, who had served with Truman in World War I, asked for help for his campfire buddy.

Truman begged the boss for nomination to a $22,000 local job, but "Old Tom" didn't think he rated such a fat plum. Instead, the boss nominated and elected Truman to the Senate in 1934. Even as President, Truman returned periodically to the Pendergast organization's shindigs, and made a special trip to his benefactor's funeral.

EDITOR — The third leading figure in the drama is roly-poly Roy Roberts, managing editor of the Star. As a prominent Washington correspondent for 25 years, Roberts became a national political figure. Almost alone, he nominated Alf Landon in 1936. He was an old friend and original promoter of Ike Eisenhower. Although independent, his newspaper is a Republican bible in the Midwest. Ironically, the court case was tried with Eisenhower appointees handling the prosecution.

The hard-hitting Roberts shattered the Pendergast machine, helping to land the "old man" in prison. He exposed ballot-box stuffing, and the voting of non-residents and deceased. He assailed Truman and his various attorneys general for their failure to prosecute the political crooks. Once a good friend of Truman, Roberts became the Missouri politician's "hairshirt."

"Linda Kyle is caring for it. She asked to, and Fred let her. He brought it here first—"

"When was this?"

"The night it was born. That was the night after the party I gave. You were asleep."

"Was Murphy also asleep?"

"Mamma, I tell you Murphy isn't in on this!"

"Who started stories?"

"I don't—know."

"Katie, do not lie to me."

The girl stared at Ludmilla, then laughed. "You're just like Fred. I can't fool, either."

Ludmilla waited.

"I don't know that this is right, Mamma," said Katie hesitantly.

"But Mirandy owns the ranch next to Godfrey's. She—"

"So?" cried Ludmilla. "That one!"

"Now, Mamma... I only figure that she talked to the Nienabers, and her German is so poor that she—well—misunderstood."

"Why don't you go out and talk to the Nienabers?"

"Oh, I couldn't. I don't have a car. It's quite a way out there. Besides, Fred wouldn't want me to interfere."

"Maybe you are right," said Ludmilla, rising from her chair. "But I have a car. I talk German. I shall go out!"

"Oh, Mamma! Fred—"

"Fred need not know! I shall not harm anyone. I shall talk to this Nienaber. And maybe I shall talk to this Mirandy!"

Katie gurgled at the way she spoke Mirandy's name, and did what else she could to dissuade Ludmilla. It was far from enough.

She finally gave the valiant old lady directions for reaching the Godfrey ranch and watched her little coupe trundle off up the street, Ludmilla looking like one of those rigid little figures put into toy cars of molded iron.

Ludmilla's first word with Richard Nienaber was reassuring. In German, she announced herself to the man as the doctor's mother.

"Kuss die hand!" cried the little man, hastening to open the gate.

That servile greeting expressed many things, but resentment was not among them. It took Ludmilla five minutes of rapid German to determine the situation here, five more for her to go into the basement rooms and look around. It took her no time at all to decide what must be done.

In the middle of the afternoon, when Fred turned his car into the lane, and came up to the house, blankets and sheets and towels were flapping from a clothesline. There was the rich smell of baking in the air, the perfume of a stewing chicken—and Ludmilla stood, skirts kilted, upon a step-ladder, washing the basement windows of the Godfrey house.

"And just what do you think you are doing?" called her son.

She did not look around, or pause in her task. "That is a very foolish question. What do you want?"

"Where is Nienaber?"

"I told him to clean the chicken house. He has been neglecting things."

"He's had great troubles, Mamma."

"Fifth never lightened trouble, Fred." She studied the window pane suspiciously, then prepared to dismount from the ladder. Fred went to her help, his face and tone a mixture of anger and amusement. "You should not have done this, Mamma."

"Why not?"

"For one thing, you're too old to fall off ladders!"

"No, go!" She stopped for her bucket of water. Fred held her hand.

She looked sternly at her son. "I came out to help these poor people!"

"Yes, Mamma, but—"

"I am not so old but what I can wash bedclothes, scrub a floor and cook food for a man."

Nienaber had emerged from his chicken house and caught sight of Fred. Now he came running and stumbling across the yard.

Minnesota is the Gopher state.

Fred said. "Slowly, man slowly! It will help no one for you to break a leg."

Nienaber babbled a jumble of inquiry for Clara, for the baby, thanks for the doctor's sainted mother. . . . Ludmilla snorted, and beamed.

Fred cried out for Nienaber to be silent, and then proceeded to tell the half-hysterical man that he was well aware of his mother's virtues and that he had come out to make a report on Clara. She had stood the trip well, she had been put into a room by herself for the first few days, and the doctor would call Fred after the examinations and tests. In the hospital there were two doctors and a nurse who spoke German—but Clara was to engage herself in learning English while she was there. She had sent word to Richard that he must do likewise.

As for the baby, he prospered. Mrs. Kyle was very good to him. Nienaber could come in and see the baby whenever he wished.

"I've brought back a report on your sputum tests," Fred told him. "They are fortunately negative. Do you understand, Richard? You do not have tuberculosis."

"So!" cried Ludmilla. "And the house is now free of germs. The baby may return, no Fritz!"

"Not without a woman to care for him, Mamma."

"Then I will find such a woman!" declared Ludmilla. She stooped and unpinned her skirts, smoothed her hair, lifted her bucket and sent its water swooshing across the yard. "She cannot be young." Her eyes twinkled into Fred's. "But surely one may be found as old as me—or older—who can come here. There are plenty of rooms upstairs. This Herr Godfrey did not mean his caretakers to live in a pig pen."

"I've been telling them that."

"So now I will tell them! This woman will come for a home; and she will care for the baby."

"Mamma, where are we going to find such a woman?"

"I will spend my time finding one."

"I don't know of anyone in the Valley who speaks German."

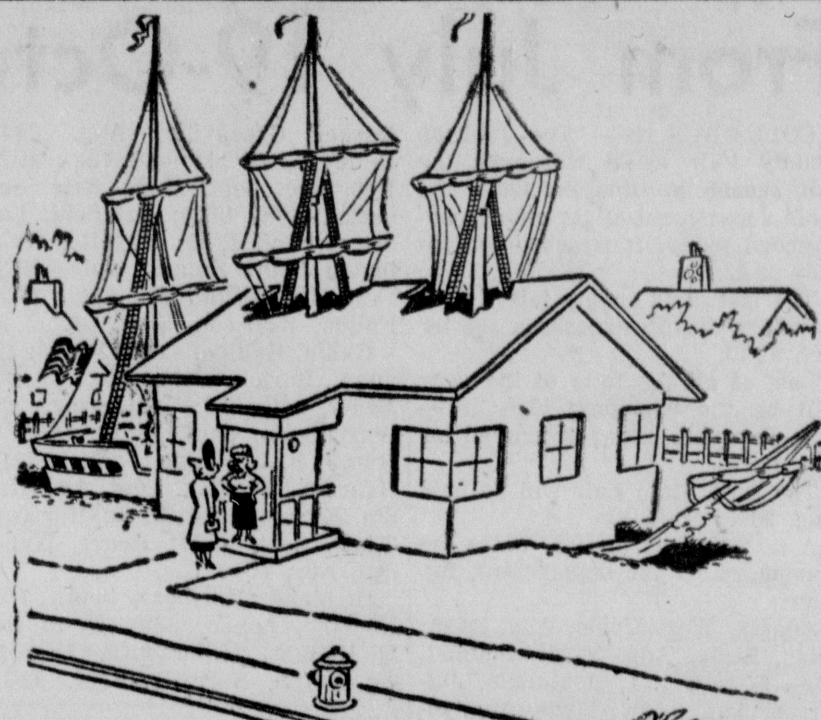

"Why should she? Richard, you say, is going to learn English. The best way to learn is to have to talk it. I know I did it that way!"

Fred threw out his hands in despair. "My mamma," he told the bemused Nienaber, "is, as you say, a wonderful woman."

"Your Mamma likes to finish what she has started," declared Ludmilla. "Now, Fred, I give you coffee and sweet rolls. Then you go home and tell Katie that I shall stay here overnight. I shall talk German to this lonesome man. She will understand. If you do not think of some housekeeper by tomorrow, Fred, I shall myself come into town and search."

news behind the news

WASHINGTON — The prosecution of the Kansas City Star for alleged violation of the antitrust statutes shows vividly how a vindictive President can use his power to obtain political revenge. The behind-the-scenes story of Harry S. Truman's personal vendetta against this great Missouri newspaper is an incredible and sinister drama.

Two weeks before Truman quit the White House, he instituted the civil suit and criminal action against two Star officers. The FBI assigned scores of its ablest agents to the case, in contrast to its difference to the Pendergast election frauds. More strangely, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., appointed by Truman's successor, carried on vigorously when he took office.

The first case was tried before a Truman-sponsored judge, Richard Duncan. A former House member, Duncan was nominated by F.D.R. at Truman's suggestion over the objection of former Attorney General Francis Biddle, who questioned his fitness. Judge Duncan's instructions to the jury have been characterized as "highly prejudicial" to the Star.

Earl J. Wilkinson, who directed the prosecution against the newspaper for the Department of Justice, has been promoted by Brownell. He has been made head of the antitrust division of the Midwest, with headquarters in Chicago.

ACTION—The Star was convicted by a jury of violating the anti-trust laws because of its low package price for its morning, evening and Sunday editions. The government apparently contends that efficiency and economy in production and distribution of a product—any product—constitutes a crime.

The same issue has been raised against the newspaper's combined low advertising rates. In a sense, the government asks a jury of lay people to pass upon such a complex problem as a newspaper's circulation, advertising and accounting structure. It amounts to an indirect method of price-fixing.

In addition to the criminal case, in which the Star has been found guilty, there is pending a civil suit. Since the Star will appeal, the Supreme Court may yet pass upon the government's attempt to coerce and influence the press. If it can be done to the Star, it can be applied to any newspaper.

POLITICAL BOSS — But the more important story here lies outside the courtroom. It is a fantastic tale of crooked Missouri politics, a newspaper's crusade to clean up Kansas City, and a former President's mistaken loyalty to a political grafter.

For 40 years, the political boss of Kansas City was "Old Tom" Pendergast, who ended his career in federal prison for cheating on his income tax. He ran a wide-open town—gambling, prostitution, speakeasies, poolrooms. He cowed business and industry with his control of City Hall, sometimes the governor and legislature.

He stuffed ballot boxes and voted the dead. He was an influential figure at Democratic national conventions. The makers of Presidents sought his favors.

YOUNG DAYS—Truman would still be an unknown except for "Old Tom." After the bankruptcy of his haberdashery shop, Truman was handed a $6,000 county job by Pendergast because his nephew, who had served with Truman in World War I, asked for help for his campfire buddy.

Truman begged the boss for nomination to a $22,000 local job, but "Old Tom" didn't think he rated such a fat plum. Instead, the boss nominated and elected Truman to the Senate in 1934. Even as President, Truman returned periodically to the Pendergast organization's shindigs, and made a special trip to his benefactor's funeral.

By Ray Tucker

EDITOR — The third leading figure in the drama is roly-poly Roy Roberts, managing editor of the Star. As a prominent Washington correspondent for 25 years, Roberts became a national political figure. Almost alone, he nominated Alf Landon in 1936. He was an old friend and original promoter of Ike Eisenhower. Although independent, his newspaper is a Republican bible in the Midwest. Ironically, the court case was tried with Eisenhower appointees handling the prosecution.

The hard-hitting Roberts shattered the Pendergast machine, helping to land the "old man" in prison. He exposed ballot-box stuffing, and the voting of non-residents and deceased. He assailed Truman and his various attorneys general for their failure to prosecute the political crooks. Once a good friend of Truman, Roberts became the Missouri politician's "hairshirt."

Do you ever run out of hot water at your house?

If you are like many families, your water heater will "leave you cold" when you do the laundry... or while washing the dishes... or after several baths have been taken.

You Need an Automatic Laundry-Rated Gas Water Heater.

Families are using more and more hot water every year. They have more automatic home laundries, automatic dishwashers, bigger families, and more shower baths than ever before. Even though your present water heater may be gas-fired and automatic, it can still be inadequate for your present needs. Be sure your next water heater is Laundry-Rated.

Laundry-Rating is a scientific method for determining which water heaters will meet your water requirements.

Quantity, temperature, and availability of hot water are the three prime considerations in selecting a water heater for your family. Matching these three factors to your individual requirements assure you the best hot water service available.

District Medical Auxiliary Hears Address On Narcotics

The members of the Auxiliary to the Pickaway County Medical Society were hosts to a district meeting of the Auxiliary to the Ohio State Medical Association at a luncheon meeting held in Pickaway Arms.

Following the luncheon, Kenneth Krouse, attorney general in the offices of narcotics problems, addressed the group. Mr. Krouse replaced Alvin Krenzler, scheduled speaker, who is ill.

Mr. Krouse stated that the average narcotics addict spends from 10 to 30 dollars a day for drugs, which become a necessity. He will do anything to obtain the funds for the drug, thus leading himself into crime.

The speaker announced that a committee has been working for over a year on the investigation of the narcotics situation in the state. The survey shows that each addict will bring in three other people as buyers, thus creating a circle of victims. The speaker estimated that for every known addict, there are six victims, still unknown.

Mr. Krouse stressed the fact that the main way in which the public can help is to teach the young people that there is nothing about the habit that is uplifting. It is simply degrading, leading to misery for themselves and their families.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Now, for the first time since President Eisenhower entered the White House, the Democrats are able to examine his employee security program. They're taking a double look, starting today.

This program has generated a lot of Democratic heat, no doubt much of it political, ever since 1953 when the administration began issuing numbers on the people fired from the government as security risks.

Because the administration didn't say how many of them actually were subversives, the Democrats called the whole performance a "numbers game." The administration claims 8,008 "security risks" have quit or been discharged.

There has been wide concern, inside and outside Congress, that the program, for lack of sufficient safeguards, may be working injustices. Eisenhower stands pat on his program. Over the weekend Atty. Gen. Brownell came up with a few alterations but they were minor.

Until they got control of Congress this year the Democrats couldn't set up an investigation. Now they're ready.

Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Sen. Stennis (D-Miss.) have proposed creation of a special 12-man commission to look into the whole broad problem of government security—ranging from the Eisenhower employee program to laws on spying and sabotage—and report back in March 1956 with recommendations.

Today, Humphrey, head of a Senate subcommittee, opens hearings intended to acquaint Congress, if it sets up the commission, with information on the broad problem of security. So his hearings won't be on Eisenhower's program alone.

But soon the Senate's Post Office and Civil Service Committee, headed by Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), will start hearings concentrated on the Eisenhower program alone. That will probably be a stormy one, full of political implications for 1956.

Eisenhower's administration didn't like President Truman's program for getting rid of government employees who might endanger the country if allowed to keep their jobs.

Eisenhower, on April 17, 1953, substituted his own program. It differed from Truman's in two main ways:

1. Under Truman the test was a man's loyalty. Under Eisenhower a man can be fired if he's a security risk. What's that? It might be a Communist or a drunk or a homosexual or a person with a Communist relative.

2. Under Eisenhower a man about to be fired can appeal to the head of his agency or department. If turned down there, he's out. Under Truman such a man, if turned down by his agency head, could appeal to a special loyalty review board whose word was final. Eisenhower abolished this appeals board.

Later Closing For London Pubs Tried

LONDON (AP)—The suspect in the jewelry robbery case has been maneuvered into a pretty tight corner. It seems unlikely the sweet-faced grandmother could have done the deed. But Scotland Yard has analyzed her nail polish, and there are loopholes in the account of her movements on Feb. 15.

At this moment of television suspense, the boss of the pub growls: "Time, gentlemen, please—sorry, got to close, 10 o'clock and it's the law, you know."

So the customers troop out into the cold grumbling, the TV is switched off and no one knows what befell Grandma.

So irritating has the problem become that it appears television may accomplish something which no power on earth has managed to do up to now. It may bring about a change in regulations to permit British pubs to stay open a little later. Until the end of the play, anyway.

The closing hour varies place to place from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m. The 10 p. m. pubs seem to be hit at the crucial moment. Last week the proprietors of 35 pubs on the outskirts of Norwich persuaded a magistrate's court that they should be able to serve beer a half hour longer.

The later closing time gets an experimental run of one year. It may be extended if some unexpected social menace does not arise, the court stated.

Faulty Eyesight Held Cause Of Many Crashes

Local law enforcement officers agreed Tuesday that many traffic accidents may be due in whole or part to unsuspected eyesight faults, a point emphasized here as the state continued annual observance of "Save Your Vision Week."

In several of the more serious accidents listed in Pickaway County during recent months, drivers have told police they "didn't see" the other car involved until it was too late to avoid a collision.

The American Optometric Association has pointed out there is a highway accident every three seconds in the United States, and "I didn't see" is one of the most common explanations. The association also claims nearly 10 million Americans are using licenses without ever having had their driving vision tested, principally because they have repeatedly renewed their original licenses—obtained before eye tests were required.

Largely due to the Circleville Lions Club's sight-saving program, and the support it has received from district school officials and other professional men, "Save Your Vision Week" traditionally receives special attention in this district.

IN ITS application to traffic safety, Dr. Dave Goldschmidt, local member of the state branch of the optometric association, explained: "Contrary to what an awful lot of motorists and other people think, 20-20 doesn't always mean perfect vision. Your eyes may be 20-20 and still have a number of faults."

"They may, for example, lack coordination. You can have a stigmatism. And you can be farsighted too, and still have 20-20 vision."

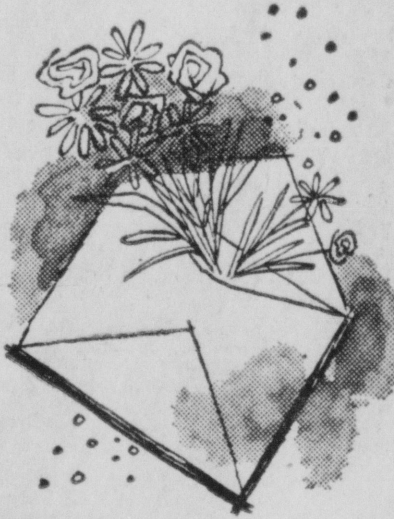

"Such faults and others familiar to the profession can very easily cause or contribute to traffic accidents."

This is the 27th year the nation has observed "Save Your Vision Week."

In addition to Dr. Goldschmidt, Dr. Robert Hedges and Dr. William Speakman are also local members of the state optometric association.

HOTTEST BUICK IN HISTORY

No wonder you see so many 1955 Buicks on the highways—they're rolling up bigger sales than ever before in history—topping the popularity that has already made Buick one of the "Big Three" in total national sales.

Who says you can't have getaway and gas saving too?

(maybe you'd better try Variable Pitch Dynaflo!)

As any automotive engineer will tell you, the goal in automatic transmissions has long been a design that would give top acceleration and top gas mileage—and still be absolutely smooth.

Well, it's easy to step up acceleration, or gas mileage—but tough to do both together—unless a lot of gearshifting takes place, which cuts down on smoothness.

So Buick engineers looked to aviation for the answer—and brother! what a wondrous new magic they came up with!

They took a leaf from the airplane's variable pitch propeller—which switches the pitch of its blades one way for quick take-off—and another way for better gas mileage aloft.

They brought the same principle to Dynaflo Drive*—to the twenty propeller-like blades in the Dynaflo "stator." They engineered these blades to swivel like the blades of the plane propeller—and with the same results.

In cruising and in all normal driving, the blades are angled for fuel economy—and you get a lot more miles from a tankful of gas.

But when you have to move instantly—when you need quick getaway, or a sudden burst of safety-surge power to get out of a tight spot on the highway—you just press down that gas pedal, and you're off in a split second.

You've never felt anything like it before—because there's never been anything like it before in an automobile.

It's action that's sheer thrill—action that's backed by the highest V8 horsepower in Buick history—action that's sending Buick sales soaring to record-high levels.

Come in and try it, at the wheel of a Buick SPECIAL, CENTURY, SUPER or ROADMASTER. You have nothing to lose—and the most thrilling buy of the year to meet.

U. S. Industry Shows Increase In Silver Use

Industrial Producers Buy More Of Metal Than Jewelry Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Silver has marched into industry with the electronics age. This year more of that metal is going into industrial products than into silverware, jewelry or the arts.

Two chief talking points for silver's use in industry are: 1. Its boosters say silver is "the best conductor of electricity known to man." 2. They say that silver alloys used to join two metals make so strong a solder that the metal parts themselves will break before the silver joint will.

Last year wasn't too good for the silver people, however. Some 85 million ounces were used by U. S. industries and in the arts. But this was a drop of 19 per cent from the year before, and the lowest since 1941.

Handy & Harman, which began as a silver brokerage firm in 1867 but is now primarily a silver manufacturing and research organization, blames the drop on last year's slowdown in the heavy industries where silver is used.

For silver goes into autos, farm tractors, bicycles, dishwashers, washing machines, sewing machines, lawn mowers, guns and phones, as well as into TV and radio sets, radar equipment and the like. Also, the silverware and jewelry makers had some bad months last year.

Use this year is picking up with the general business revival. Production of many of the durable goods that use silver has increased. Now silver men are eyeing a new field in TV and radio set production, that of electrical circuits printed on paper and using silver as the ink. The current follows the silver to where the electricity is needed.

The printed sheet of circuits substitutes for the maze of wires in older sets. Thus new sets can be made smaller and more compact. General Electric engineers estimate that perhaps one million sets with printed wiring will be made this year.

Silver has plenty of competition in industry from other metals.

At 84¢ cents an ounce (silver's price for more than two years) it is an expensive metal.

Copper and aluminum are much cheaper conductors of electricity. And not even the mist avoid silver man contends that electric power and telephone companies should string silver across the land.

Base metals are much cheaper as solder. But silver men have some sales points for certain uses. Because of a low melting point, silver solder flows easily and a small quantity does an effective job, lowering unit costs.

Silver is adaptable to mass production use, they say. Two metal parts to be joined are brought together, with a workman inserting silver alloys between them in the form of wire or ring. The entire assembly is sent through a heat process and the two metals are strongly joined. Your family percolator, toaster or electric stove may have such joints.

Short TV Urged

LONDON (AP)—The boss of Britain's government-sponsored television said last night he is against increasing the hours of viewing, now at six daily. "I think the shorter TV hours are, the better," Sir George Barnes declared.

Hal Boyle Says:

Nut Still Behind Wheel

NEW YORK (AP)—If you are going to have a second automobile in the family, Henry Austin Clark Jr. suggests you be a real rugged individualist and shop around for a fine old sturdy 1915 Model T Ford or a snazzy 1919 Stutz Bearcat.

Clark, 37-year-old sugar heir, is one of the nation's leading antique car collectors. He has some 250 models, most of them manufactured before he was born.

Restoring antique autos is a hobby growing in popularity each year.

"There are now between 10,000 and 15,000 antique cars in captivity, that is, cars that have been restored and are in the hands of collectors," he said. "Before the second world war there were only about 500."

"There are between 8,000 and 10,000 collectors, ranging from college boys to elderly millionaires. Some 1,000 now have five or more old cars. The restored cars are worth anything from a few hundred dollars up to, I would say, $10,000."

Clark uses a new car himself for daily driving, but insists modern models lack many qualities of the old autos granddad drove in the adventurous age of motoring.

"The new cars all have several extra feet of useless metal encasing nothing," he observed. "And a lot of them are plastered with chromium pasted on for no obvious reason."

"They've sacrificed individuality at the altar of mass production. Unless you pick an unusual two-tone job, you can't tell one car from another. But if you're driving an 1894 Fisson you don't have any trouble finding it in a parking lot."

"The old cars had a lot of other advantages. Fresh air, for one thing. And more visibility. You could see where you were going."

"I have to admit the new cars have better brakes. But if you get into a two-foot snowfall, an old car will plow right through it. A new car is too low. It just piles up the snow in front of it and stalls."

"A modern car is also lost in 12-inch mud. An old car wasn't. A Model T could go places that no other car since it could except the jeep."

"Speed? That's nothing new in motor cars. In 1906 Fred Marriott made 127 miles an hour in a Stanley Steamer. The next year he was doing an estimated 180 to 190 when he hit a rough spot and overturned. The car's boiler went about half a mile down the track but Fred survived."

"In the Paris to Madrid race back in 1903 they achieved a speed of 90 miles an hour. But they killed so many spectators along the way (I believe it was about 40) they had to call off the race."

"They had some horrible accidents in the old days, just as they do now. In terms of safety the only thing that hasn't changed in the automobile is the nut behind the wheel."

Clark believes the most valuable and desirable old car in the country is his 1910 Simplex sports car, which "will still do 80 to 90 miles an hour easily."

Many of the antique cars he searches out to buy and restore are found in old family barns and estate garages. Others, surprisingly, are still on the roads.

"That can be embarrassing," he laughed. "Sometimes an owner gets indignant when you tell him you want to buy and preserve as an antique the car he drives every day."

"The owner may not necessarily be poor either. I understand the Astors have a 1911 Rolls Royce which they sometimes still use for afternoon occasions."

Clark, who recently sponsored the "Carnival of Cars" on Broadway, keeps most of his antiques in a museum in Southampton.

One of his prize exhibits, a 1906 Adams-Farwell with a rotating engine that spins like a top, has a feature which Detroit might well consider putting into its 1955 model to please cautious wives.

You can drive it from either the front or back seat.

peace, out of an initial gadget, as in our country.

An outstanding condition in Russia is the reduction of oil consumption; less oil being used today as fuel than 50 years ago. Whereas geologists believe that from the Caspian Sea to the Urals lie large deposits of petroleum, they have not been developed so far as is known.

Coal, which is readily available in the Donets, Kuznetsk, Moscow and Ural basins, both bituminous and lignite, is replacing petroleum as fuel, whereas in the United States, petroleum is replacing coal. In 1901, Russia was producing half the world's supply of petroleum; in 1953, its share was about eight per cent of the world's supply.

Modern agriculture is a phase of a petroleum technique. Modern farming is done by machines that move on oil. Oil drilling consumes quantities of steel which must be available and the use of which cannot be postponed to make armaments. A modern country must be prepared to provide guns, bombs, butter and petroleum at the same time. The Socialist theory that some items are postponable does not work out in the over-all results.

Kruschchev apparently faces this problem, but what is his solution for it? He is following the Stalinist line of sacrificing everything for heavy industry and armaments. Stalin, however, had the advantage of an $11 billion gift from the United States and enormous technical assistance. This will not be available for Krushchev.

Police made no arrests but explained to the youngsters that a river, even without water, is a river and not a race track.

U. S. Industry Shows Increase In Silver Use

Industrial Producers Buy More Of Metal Than Jewelry Trade

NEW YORK (AP)—Silver has marched into industry with the electronics age. This year more of that metal is going into industrial products than into silverware, jewelry or the arts.

Two chief talking points for silver's use in industry are: 1. Its boosters say silver is "the best conductor of electricity known to man." 2. They say that silver alloys used to join two metals make so strong a solder that the metal parts themselves will break before the silver joint will.

Last year wasn't too good for the silver people, however. Some 85 million ounces were used by U. S. industries and in the arts. But this was a drop of 19 per cent from the year before, and the lowest since 1941.

Handy & Harman, which began as a silver brokerage firm in 1867 but is now primarily a silver manufacturing and research organization, blames the drop on last year's slowdown in the heavy industries where silver is used.

For silver goes into autos, farm tractors, bicycles, dishwashers, washing machines, sewing machines, lawn mowers, guns and phones, as well as into TV and radio sets, radar equipment and the like. Also, the silverware and jewelry makers had some bad months last year.

Use this year is picking up with the general business revival. Production of many of the durable goods that use silver has increased.

Now silver men are eyeing a new field in TV and radio set production, that of electrical circuits printed on paper and using silver as the ink. The current follows the silver to where the electricity is needed.

The printed sheet of circuits substitutes for the maze of wires in older sets. Thus new sets can be made smaller and more compact. General Electric engineers estimate that perhaps one million sets with printed wiring will be made this year.

Silver has plenty of competition in industry from other metals.

At 84 1/2 cents an ounce (silver's price for more than two years) it is an expensive metal.

Copper and aluminum are much cheaper conductors of electricity. And not even the misty-eyed silver man contends that electric power and telephone companies should string silver across the land.

Base metals are much cheaper as solder. But silver men have some sales points for certain uses. Because of a low melting point, silver solder flows easily and a small quantity does an effective job, lowering unit costs.

Silver is adaptable to mass production use, they say. Two metal parts to be joined are brought together, with a workman inserting silver alloys between them in the form of wire or ring. The entire assembly is sent through a heat process and the two metals are strongly joined. Your family percolator, toaster or electric stove may have such joints.

Short TV Urged

LONDON (AP)—The boss of Britain's government-sponsored television said last night he is against increasing the hours of viewing, now at six daily. "I think the shorter TV hours are, the better," Sir George Barnes declared.

Hal Boyle Says:

Nut Still Behind Wheel

NEW YORK (AP)—If you are going to have a second automobile in the family, Henry Austin Clark Jr. suggests you be a real rugged individualist and shop around for a fine old sturdy 1915 Model T Ford or a snazzy 1919 Stutz Bearcat.

Clark, 37-year-old sugar heir, is one of the nation's leading antique car collectors. He has some 250 models, most of them manufactured before he was born.

Restoring antique autos is a hobby growing in popularity each year.

"There are now between 10,000 and 15,000 antique cars in captivity, that is, cars that have been restored and are in the hands of collectors," he said. "Before the second world war there were only about 500."

"There are between 8,000 and 10,000 collectors, ranging from college boys to elderly millionaires. Some 1,000 now have five or more old cars. The restored cars are worth anything from a few hundred dollars up to, I would say, $10,000."

Clark uses a new car himself for daily driving, but insists modern models lack many qualities of the old autos granddad drove in the adventurous age of motoring.

"The new cars all have several extra feet of useless metal encasing nothing," he observed. "And a lot of them are plastered with chromium pasted on for no obvious reason."

"They've sacrificed individuality at the altar of mass production. Unless you pick an unusual two-tone job, you can't tell one car from another. But if you're driving an 1894 Fisson you don't have any trouble finding it in a parking lot."

"The old cars had a lot of other advantages. Fresh air, for one thing. And more visibility. You could see where you were going."

"I have to admit the new cars have better brakes. But if you get into a two-foot snowfall, an old car will plow right through it. A new car is too low. It just piles up the snow in front of it and stalls."

"A modern car is also lost in 12-inch mud. An old car wasn't. A Model T could go places that no other car since it could expect the jeep."

"Speed? That's nothing new in motor cars. In 1906 Fred Marriott made 127 miles an hour in a Stanley Steamer. The next year he was doing an estimated 180 to 190 when he hit a rough spot and overturned. The car's boiler went about half a mile down the track but Fred survived."

"In the Paris to Madrid race back in 1903 they achieved a speed of 90 miles an hour. But they killed so many spectators along the way (I believe it was about 40) they had to call off the race."

"They had some horrible accidents in the old days, just as they do now. In terms of safety the only thing that hasn't changed in the automobile is the nut behind the wheel."

Clark believes the most valuable and desirable old car in the country is his 1910 Simplex sports car, which "will still do 80 to 90 miles an hour easily."

Many of the antique cars he searches out to buy and restore are found in old family barns and estate garages. Others, surprisingly, are still on the roads.

"That can be embarrassing," he laughed. "Sometimes an owner gets indignant when you tell him you want to buy and preserve as an antique the car he drives every day."

"The owner may not necessarily be poor either. I understand the Astors have a 1911 Rolls Royce which they sometimes still use for afternoon occasions."

Clark, who recently sponsored the "Carnival of Cars" on Broadway, keeps most of his antiques in a museum in Southampton.

One of his prize exhibits, a 1906 Adams-Farwell with a rotating engine that spins like a top, has a feature which Detroit might well consider putting into its 1956 model to please cautious wives.

You can drive it from either the front or back seat.

Cop Chief Quitting

DAYTON (AP)—Col. M. C. Kirkpatrick, Dayton police chief since 1949, announced his retirement yesterday. He was a member of the force 30 years.

peace, out of an initial gadget, as in our country.

An outstanding condition in Russia is the reduction of oil consumption; less oil being used today as fuel than 50 years ago. Whereas geologists believe that from the Caspian Sea to the Urals lie large deposits of petroleum, they have not been developed so far as is known.

Coal, which is readily available in the Donets, Kuznetsk, Moscow and Ural basins, both bituminous and lignite, is replacing petroleum as fuel, whereas in the United States, petroleum is replacing coal. In 1901, Russia was producing half the world's supply of petroleum; in 1953, its share was about eight percent of the world's supply.

Modern agriculture is a phase of a petroleum technique. Modern farming is done by machines that move on oil. Oil drilling consumes quantities of steel which must be available and the use of which cannot be postponed to make armaments. A modern country must be prepared to provide guns, bombs, butter and petroleum at the same time. The Socialist theory that some items are postponable does not work out in the over-all results.

Krushev apparently faces this problem, but what is his solution for it? He is following the Stalinist line of sacrificing everything for heavy industry and armaments. Stalin, however, had the advantage of an $11 billion gift from the United States and enormous technical assistance. This will not be available for Krushchev.

River Bed Racers Chased By Police

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles River is just rolling along today—without hot rods.

Police rounded up about 150 youngsters who were racing souped up jalopies on the dry, paved river bottom recently. About 30 other cars left the police waiting on the levee and escaped up the San Fernando Road ramp.

Police made no arrests but explained to the youngsters that a river, even without water, is a river and not a race track.

Surgeon, 76, Dies

DETROIT (AP)—Dr. William H. Honor, 76, died of a heart attack yesterday while operating on a patient at Wyandotte General Hospital. His assistant, Dr. Daniel C. Thomson, completed the operation and the patient was reported in satisfactory condition.

Ohio Triplets Die

COLUMBUS (AP)—Triplets born to Marine Sgt. and Mrs. William E. Hofstetter Friday died early yesterday. The daughter and two sons, born prematurely, weighed a little over 2 1/2 pounds each.

Efforts To Save Costs Man $90

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—John B. Sheehy had a chance yesterday to save a $38.50 repair job on his automobile.

"Drive fast three or four miles," a mechanic told him, "and you won't have to pay for the carbon elimination job."

Sheehy was arrested for doing 90 miles an hour while trying to "blow out" the carbon.

He was fined $90.

deadlocked with Mrs. Pung at the start of the final round, finished one stroke back.

Experiments Being Tried By Top Baseball Managers

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
Major league managers often experiment during spring training with position shifts designed to strengthen their clubs. These shifts don't always work out, but there's no harm in improvising with the material at hand.

This season has been no exception. The big league skippers have been switching players all around.

The Washington Senators have been toying with the idea of moving third baseman Eddie Yost to the outfield, provided an adequate replacement can be found.

Manager Chuck Dressen and coach Cookie Lavagetto, a former top third sacker, have been concentrating on polishing the play of 18-year-old Harmon Killebrew. They are striving to improve the bonus youngster's throwing with hopes of stationing him at third.

Dressen also is looking over some other prospects on the 50-man squad in an effort to send Yost to the outfield.

Chicago White Sox skipper Marty Marion shifted two of his rookie infield prospects to the outfield in an intrasquad game yesterday. First baseman Jim Marshall and third baseman Joe Mauer were the displaced players as the "Myatts" edged the "Gutteridges" 5-4.

Brooklyn Dodger manager Walt Alton named his starting lineup for Thursday night's opener with the Milwaukee Braves and veteran shortstop Pee Wee Reese was not listed. Alton considers Reese his regular shortstop, but would like to see him perform at both second and third base.

Milwaukee Braves' Manager Charlie Grimm has two young shortstop prospects in camp—Al Facchini and Bill Caro—so he put Caro at third in yesterday's intrasquad game. Grimm, elated at their "surprising ability," said, "They looked sharp in our early workouts last week but did even better in competition."

Southwest pitcher Dave Koslo is the oldest player on the Milwaukee roster. He is 35 years old.

Here Is Policy Community Fund Would Use Here

Leaders of the plan to merge most or all of the local fund-raising drives have released the text of a proposed constitution for the new organization.

Highlights of the constitution will be brought to The Herald's readers in three installments. The second installment follows:

ARTICLE THREE — Membership

Section 2. Any contributor to the Community Fund shall be an individual member of this corporation and entitled to attend the Annual Meeting and exercise one vote on any matter before the Annual Meeting.

ARTICLE FOUR — Cooperating Organizational Members

Section 1. Any organization rendering health and welfare services for Pickaway County citizens, interested in the objectives of this corporation and agreeing to operate in accordance with this Constitution and by-laws upon recommendation of the Citizens' Advisory Screening Committee, and upon approval of the Board of Trustees of this corporation, may become a cooperating organization of the Community Fund for one year at a time. Organizations must be governed by a Board of Trustees or Board of Directors of representative Pickaway County community citizens, maintain permanent record of income and expense, have an annual audit, establish a competent lay budget committee, and render reasonably significant and non-duplicating community health and welfare services.

(a) No strictly religious organizations serving a limited group shall be eligible as a cooperating organizational member.

(b) No agency which participates in the annual Community Fund Campaign shall conduct any public campaign or solicitation for financial assistance for ordinary routine purposes, nor any special campaign for special financial purposes, except with the consent first obtained of the Board of Trustees of this organization.

ARTICLE FIVE — Board of Trustees

Section 1. The management and administration of the affairs of this corporation shall be vested in a Board of Trustees.

(a) Cooperating Organization Members:
At the Annual Meeting each year such cooperating organization shall name one individual to serve for a term of one year on the Community Fund Board of Trustees.

In the event vacancies occur among those designated to represent cooperating organizations, the organization originally designating the trustee to the position which becomes vacant shall designate a successor to serve the balance of the term.

(b) Individual Contributor Members:
At the annual meeting each year contributor members of the Community Fund shall elect one member from each township to be known as members-at-large to serve as Board of Trustee members from a slate presented by the Nominating Committee, or those nominated from the floor.

At the first annual meeting the Board members-at-large shall be elected for terms as follows: Three members for five years; 3 members for four years; 3 members for three years; 3 members for two years; 3 members for one year. Such Board members-at-large shall be representatives of the geographical areas of the whole county, one from each of the 15 townships.

Board members shall be elected thereafter for five-year terms. The number elected each year shall correspond to the number shown above.

GOP Says Lausche's Budget Off-Balance By $25 Million

COLUMBUS (AP)—Republican legislative leaders who last week accused Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche of submitting a budget nearly $10 million out of balance have jumped the ante to $25 million.

And, in a change of tune from recent sessions of the General Assembly, the Republicans now are suggesting Lausche's estimate of state income may be too high. For a half-dozen years, GOP spokesmen have complained the governor's estimates were too low.

The two observations on the state's financial plight were made last night in a joint statement issued by House Speaker Roger Cloud (R-Logan) and J. Frank McClure (R-Ashtand), chairman of the Ohio House Finance Committee. The statement was authorized by the Republican majority in the House.

Lausche submitted his record $931 million budget a week ago.

IMMEDIATELY, Senate and House GOP leaders branded it a budget written in red ink. That was because Lausche recommended the use of nearly $10 million out of the state surplus of the last two years to help pay the state's living expenses for the next two years.

But after they studied the Lausche measure, said Cloud and McClure, they found another $15 million will be needed because of:

1. Failure to set aside more than $10 million for the first month's payment on the school foundation program for the next two years as was done for the present two-year fiscal period.

2. Failure to allow at least $5 million to care for increased school enrollments in the second year of the biennium.

In short, said the Republican leaders, Lausche's budget calls on the state to spend at least $20 million more than it takes in during the next two years.

Ohio's Farm-Home Week March 22-25

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

"This Basic Business of Farming" will be the theme for the 43rd annual Farm and Home Week, March 22-25, at Ohio State University, program chairman George Crane announced. Crane, assistant director of extension, said each department in the College of Agriculture is concentrating on new developments in farming and home-making for the 1955 program.

Nearly 100 exhibitors are expected to display new tractors, field machinery, electrical equipment and shop equipment at Ives Hall. Agricultural engineers will hold clinics to answer questions on operation and care of equipment.

Agronomists will report new findings in fertilizer use, seedbed preparation and tillage practices, Johnson grass control, and crop varieties. They will tell what they have learned from 100,000 soil tests, and what organic matter does in the soil. Hunger signs in crops, growing continuous corn, a complete program for high crop yields and equivalent values of liming materials also are among the topics on the 3-day schedule.

Horticulturists will hold evening sessions again this year. They will conduct tours of the greenhouses and present vegetable, fruit and flower growing demonstrations.

Animal science and dairy science departments will devote one day each to problems of feeding, breeding and marketing.

Friday will be youth day. The program will include such topics as boy-girl relationships, getting start-

EASY REDUCING

Science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why...

counteracts hunger

Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE RECOGNIZED proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories yet expands when it absorbs water thereby helping give the feeling of a full, contented stomach. In fact these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-calorie filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

fat goes fast

You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

We certify that ALL-IN-ONE CAPSULES are entirely safe for human consumption. Signed: Paul W. Stoltenberg, Director American Research and Testing Laboratories, Chicago, Illinois horticulturist at the Station, reported recently. Planting produced better fruiting rows and more berries than those of ordinary plants.

Virus-free plants of the popular variety Premier yielded 1,578 more quarts of berries per acre than non virus-free plants of the same variety. They also produced 10 more runner plants per parent plant than ordinary ones. A comparison of the two types of plants of Catskill and Sparkle varieties further illustrated the superiority of virus-free planting stock.

Virus-free strawberry planting stock was developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and planting stock is being produced by a number of cooperating nurseries. Over 150 million substantially virus-free plants will be available to growers during the 1955 planting season in 24 different varieties.

To obtain the full value of virus-free planting stock, growers should make every effort to minimize the possibility of reinfection. To accomplish this, isolate them from other strawberry plantings.

The Ohio Station also recommends that virus-free plantings be sprayed or dusted with either 4 percent malathion or 1 percent parathion at 7 to 10 day intervals throughout the growing season to control aphids, the known carrier of strawberry viruses. These insecticides should not be applied from the time of bloom until after harvest.

Juvenile Court Aide Is Indicted

HAMILTON (AP) — The Butler County grand jury yesterday returned an indictment charging embezzlement against Mrs. Vera Mullins, 42, of Middletown, former bookkeeper in the Middletown office of the juvenile court.

Mrs. Mullins was accused of having embezzled $2,959.14 from the court. Previously, the grand jury had indicted Emmett Sherron, 67, also of Middletown, the former chief probation officer for the court, on a charge of embezzling $4,260.

George Gobel Wins Emma As TV's Top Personality

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—George Gobel, in his first year on television, climaxed a meteoric rise last night by being named TV's outstanding new personality.

And Walt Disney and Danny Thomas, clutching two Emmies apiece, proved that television has three solid networks.

The two ABC stars, along with NBC's Gobel and Loretta Young, plus Art Carney and Audrey Meadows of the CBS's Jackie Gleason Show, dominated the seventh annual Emmy awards of the Television Academy.

Disney, already the possessor of 22 movie Oscars, won an Emmy for the best variety series on TV. And his "Operation Under Sea," an episode in the Disneyland series, was adjudged the best individual program of the year.

Thomas, star of Make Room for Daddy, was named the best actor in a regular series. His show was selected the best situation comedy. John Daly of ABC won for being the best news reporter, and the U. S. Steel Hour was named the best dramatic series.

Loretta Young became the first actress in Hollywood history to win both Oscar and Emmy. Carney and Miss Meadows were named best supporting actor and actress in a regular series.

Other awards:

Best cultural, religious or educational program: Omnibus.

Best sports program: Gillette Cavalcade of Sports.

2 Brides Admit Bouncing Checks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two brides who admitted passing bad checks to pay for trousseaus in a department store were held in county jail today. Judge Harry A. Hanna ordered the probation office to study their cases.

The women are Mrs. Mary Frances White, 26, who said she married Lewis White in Marion Jan. 3, and Mrs. Virginia Ann Britton, 23, of Norfolk, Va., who said she was the wife of a Navy man.

Is Being Overweight A Laughing Matter?

Not on your life. Being overweight is a serious matter, and should not be taken lightly. Just take 30 seconds to read the experience of Mrs. C. L. Weakley, 719 Lincoln St., Dr., Cincinnati 3, Ohio. Mrs. Weakley writes: "I have recommended Rennel Concentrate to many of my friends after knowing what it has done for me. With Rennel I decreased my weight by 20 lbs. and it has taken away that heavy bloated feeling I always had before. My waistline is 3 1/2 inches smaller, and I'm very proud of this. Thousands of others have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No ten from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If simple easy way to lose pounds of excess fat doesn't seem to show the very fat and help regain slender, empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get Rennel.

Ohio's Farm-Home Week March 22-25

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

"This Basic Business of Farming" will be the theme for the 43rd annual Farm and Home Week, March 22-25, at Ohio State University, program chairman George Crane announced. Crane, assistant director of extension, said each department in the College of Agriculture is concentrating on new developments in farming and home-making for the 1955 program.

Nearly 100 exhibitors are expected to display new tractors, field machinery, electrical equipment and shop equipment at Ives Hall. Agricultural engineers will hold clinics to answer questions on operation and care of equipment.

Agronomists will report new findings in fertilizer use, seedbed preparation and tillage practices, Johnson grass control, and crop varieties. They will tell what they have learned from 100,000 soil tests, and what organic matter does in the soil. Hunger signs in crops, growing continuous corn, a complete program for high crop yields and equivalent values of liming materials also are among the topics on the 3-day schedule.

Horticulturists will hold evening sessions again this year. They will conduct tours of the greenhouses and present vegetable, fruit and flower growing demonstrations.

Animal science and dairy science departments will devote one day each to problems of feeding, breeding and marketing.

Friday will be youth day. The program will include such topics as boy-girl relationships, getting start-

EASY REDUCING

Science now helps you take off your fat while you eat the foods you choose

Do you like sweets, candy, cake, butter, gravy potatoes? Have you tried one thing after another to reduce, spent dollar after dollar for pills and tablets and in spite of everything you've tried you're still too fat? Well, be as skeptical as you like, but now, right now, there's a wonderful new kind of capsule that helps you take off pounds and inches of ugly fat safely, quickly and so much easier you hardly know what's happening. You don't suffer starvation dieting hunger, you take no drugs, you don't exercise. In fact, you don't even diet one bit more than you want to, because you automatically eat less and here's why...

counteracts hunger
Just recently a well known scientist perfected a new tiny capsule that combines not one but ALL THE recognized proven aids to reducing. It combines the vitamins and minerals often lost when cutting off fattening foods containing these needed vitamins and minerals. It combines the vegetable cellulose that has no calories yet expands when it absorbs water thereby helping give the feeling of a full, contented stomach. In fact these tiny capsules are so packed with vitamins and minerals, protein and non-caloric filling food, they actually equal and exceed many a meal.

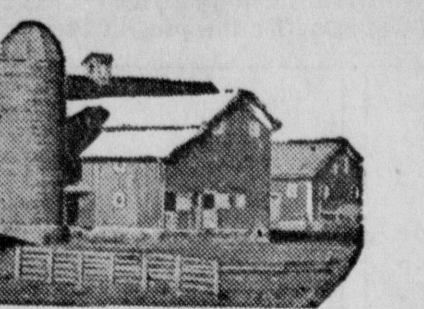

fat goes fast
You'll be surprised at the fat you lose the first week, the inches that disappear the first month. No hunger, no strict dieting, no drugs, no exercise. And the cost is absolutely nothing unless you grow slim, more youthful looking, more active and enjoy better health.

We certify that ALL-IN-ONE CAPSULES are entirely safe for human consumption horticulturist at the Station, reported recently. Planting produced better fruiting rows and more berries than those of ordinary plants.

Virus-free plants of the popular variety Premier yielded 1,578 more quarts of berries per acre than non virus-free plants of the same variety. They also produced 10 more runner plants per parent plant than ordinary ones. A comparison of the two types of plants of Catskill and Sparkle varieties further illustrated the superiority of virus-free planting stock.

There are several advantages for contour planting of fruit trees although some growers resist the idea, according to Vernon Patterson, Ohio State University extension horticulturist.

Tree rows planted on a slight terrace offer the greatest advantages from contour planting, the specialist stated. Low terraces will catch the water that flows out of an orchard after a rain.

Even orchards with a sod system of soil management lose water that terraces will conserve. It is easier to conserve soil and water than to rebuild soil fertility and add supplemental water, the specialist added.

Patterson said contour planting permits spray machinery and other orchard equipment to move on the level. Some growers complain, however, that contour planting results in short inaccessible rows and often forces them to spray against the wind.

He advised orchardmen to lay out a line on the crest of a hill on which trees will be planted. Laying out parallel rows to a row on the hill crest will help eliminate short rows and keep contours nearly on the level, he said.

Low terraces made with a plow for tree planting ridges will trap a large portion of the runoff water.

Virus-free strawberry plants were superior to ordinary plants in recent tests at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Robert G. Hill, horticulturist at the Station, reported recently. Planting produced better fruiting rows and more berries than those of ordinary plants.

Virus-free plants of the popular variety Premier yielded 1,578 more quarts of berries per acre than non virus-free plants of the same variety. They also produced 10 more runner plants per parent plant than ordinary ones. A comparison of the two types of plants of Catskill and Sparkle varieties further illustrated the superiority of virus-free planting stock.

Virus-free strawberry planting stock was developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and planting stock is being produced by a number of cooperating nurseries. Over 150 million substantially virus-free plants will be available to growers during the 1955 planting season in 24 different varieties.

To obtain the full value of virus-free planting stock, growers should make every effort to minimize the possibility of reinfection. To accomplish this, isolate them from other strawberry plantings.

The Ohio Station also recommends that virus-free plantings be sprayed or dusted with either 4 percent malathion or 1 percent parathion at 7 to 10 day intervals throughout the growing season to control aphids, the known carrier of strawberry viruses. These insecticides should not be applied from the time of bloom until after harvest.
